HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS
AND
Hoofland's German Tonic.
The Great Remedies for all Diseases of the LIVER, STOMACH, OR DIGESTIVE ORGANS.
HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS
Is composed of the pure juices (or, as they are medicinally termed, Extracts,) of Roots, Herbs, and Barks, making a preparation highly concentrated, and entirely free from alcoholic admixture of any kind.
HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC,
Is a combination of all the ingredients of the Bitters, with the purest quality of Santa Cruz Rum, Orange, &c., making one of the most pleasant and agreeable remedies ever offered to the public.
Those preferring a Medicine free from Alcoholic admixture, will use
HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS.
Those who have no objection to the combination of the bitters, as stated, will use
HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC.
They are both equally good, and contain the same medicinal virtues, the choice between the two being a mere matter of taste, the tonic being the most palatable.
The stomach, from a variety of causes, such as Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Nervous Debility, etc., is very apt to have its functions disarranged. The Liver, sympathizing as closely as it does with the stomach, then becomes affected, the result of which is that the patient suffers from several or more of the following diseases:
Constipation, Flatulence, Inward Piles, Fullness of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fulness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried or Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a lying posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil, and Great Depression of Spirits.
The sufferer from these diseases should exercise the greatest caution in the selection of a remedy for his case, purchasing only that which he is assured from his investigation possesses true merit, is entirely compounded to free from injurious ingredients, and has established for itself a reputation for the cure of these diseases. In this connection we would submit those well known remedies—
HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS
AND
HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC,
Prepared by DR. C. M. JACKSON,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.
Twenty-two years since they were first introduced into this country from Germany, during which time they have undoubtedly performed more cures, and benefited suffering humanity to a greater extent, than any other remedy known to the public.
These remedies will effectually cure Liver Complaint, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Chronic Diarrhœa, Chronic Diseases of the Kidneys, and all Diseases arising from a disordered Liver, Stomach, or Digestive DEBILITY,
Resulting from any Cause whatever; PROSTRATION OF THE SYSTEM, induced by Severe Labor, Hardships, Exposure, Fevers, &c.
There is no medicine extant equal to these remedies in such cases. A tone and vigor is imparted to the whole system, the appetite is strengthened, food is enjoyed, the stomach digests promptly, the blood is purified, the complexion becomes sound and healthy, the yellow tinge is eradicated from the eyes, a bloom is given to the cheeks, and the weak and nervous invalid becomes a strong and healthy being.
PERSONS ADVANCED IN LIFE,
And feeling the hand of time weighing heavily upon them, with all its attendant ills, will find in the use of the BITTERS, or the TONIC, an elixir that will instil new life into their veins, restore in a measure the energy and ardor of more youthful days, build up their shrunken forms, and give health and happiness to their remaining years.
NOTICE.
It is a well established fact that nine tenths of the female portion of our population are seldom in the enjoyment of good health; they, to use their own expression, never feel well. They are languid, devoid of all energy, extremely nervous, and have no appetite.
To this class of persons the BITTERS, or the TONIC, is especially recommended.
WEAK AND DELICATE CHILDREN,
Are made strong by the use of either of these remedies. They will cure every case of MARASMUS, without fail.
Innumerable other diseases have enumerated in the hands of the proprietor, but space will allow of the publication of but a few. Above, it will be observed, are some of note and of such alarming that they must be relieved.

TESTIMONIALS.
HON. GEORGE W. WOODWARD,
Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pa., writes:
Philadelphia, March 18, 1767.
"I find Hoofland's German Bitters' is a good tonic, useful in diseases and of great benefit in cases of debility, and want of nervous action of the system.
Yours, truly, GEO. W. WOODWARD."
HON. JAMES THOMPSON,
Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.
Philadelphia, April 28, 1868.
"I consider 'Hoofland's German Bitters' a valuable medicine in case of attacks of indigestion or dyspepsia. I can certify this from my experience of it. Yours, with respect, JAMES THOMPSON."
FROM REV. JOSEPH H. KENNARD, D. D.,
Pastor of the Tenth Baptist Church, Philadelphia.
Dr. Jackson—dear sir: I have been frequently requested to connect my name with recommendations of different kinds of medicines, but regarding the practice as out of my appropriate sphere, have declined; but with a clear conscience and particularly in view of the usefulness of Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, I depart for once from my usual rule, to express my full conviction that, for general debility of the system, and especially for Liver Complaint, it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may fail; but usually, I doubt not, it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above causes.
Yours, very respectfully,
J. H. KENNARD,
Eighth, below Coates St.
FROM REV. E. D. FENDALL,
Assistant Editor Christian Chronicle, Philadelphia.
I have derived decided benefit from the use of Hoofland's German Bitters, and feel it my privilege to recommend them as a most valuable tonic, to all who are suffering from general debility or from diseases arising from derangement of the liver.
Yours truly, E. D. FENDALL.
CAUTION.

BILL AND JOE.

BY O. W. HOLMES.

Come dear old comrade, you and I
Will steal an hour from days gone by—
The shining days when life was new,
All was bright with morning dew—
The lusty days of long ago,
When you were Bill and I was Joe.

Your name may flaunt a titled trail,
Proud as a cockerel's rainbow tail;
And mine a brief appendix wear
As Tam O'Shanter's luckless mare;
To-day, old friend, remember still
That I am Joe and you are Bill.

You won the great world's envied prize,
And grand you look in people's eyes
With H O N. and L. L D
In big brave letters, fair to see—
Your fist, old fellow! off they go!—
How are you, Bill? How are you, Joe?

You've worn the Judge's ermined robe;
You've taught your name to half the globe;
You've sung mankind a deathless strain;
You've made the dead past live again;
The world may call you what it will,
But you and I are Joe and Bill.

The chaffing young folks stare and say,
"See those old buffers, bent and gray—
They talk like fellows in their teens!
Mad, pourold boys! That's what it means,"
And shake their heads; they little know
The throbbing hearts of Bill and Joe.

How Bill forgets his hour of pride,
While Joe sits smiling at his side;
How Joe, in spite of time's disguise,
Finds the old schoolmate in his eyes—
Those calm, stern eyes that melt and fill
As Joe looks fondly up at Bill.

Ah, pensive scholar, what is fame?
A fitful tongue of leaping flame;
A giddy whirlwind's fickle gust,
That lifts a pinch of mortal dust;
A few swift years and who can show
Which dust was Bill and which was Joe.

A weary idol takes his stand,
Holds out his bruised and aching hand,
While gaping thousands come and go—
How vain it seems, this empty show!
Till all at once his pulses thrill;
'Tis poor old Joe's "God bless you Bill."

And shall we breathe in happier spheres
The names that pleased our mortal ears,
In some sweet lull of harp and song
For earth-born spirits none too long,
Just whispering of the world below
Where this was Bill, and that was Joe.

No matter; while our home is here
No sounding name is half so dear;
When fades at length our lingering day,
Who cares what pompous tombstones say?
Read on the hearts that love us still,
Hic jacet Joe. Hic jacet Bill.

[Written for the Globe.]

A STORY OF MY GIRLHOOD.

BY VENUS.

My readers, I have a short story to relate that perhaps will be interesting to some. My motive for thus relating my little story is for the good of others, who I hope will take warning from me and shun the follies of my youth. I have thought long on the subject before I could make up my mind to submit it to the public gaze—my cherished secret of other years. But should one fair maid take warning by the reading of my little story and reform, I will be amply repaid for the sacrifice I have made. Be assured this is no fiction, as the writer can testify; all the parties concerned are living, but scattered to the four winds. This by chance may fall under the eyes of the one that acted a part, if so it will be recognized. But to my story.

At the age of eighteen I was as gay and free from care as is the bird that floats past my window as I write. I resided in the eastern part of Pennsylvania; my father's house was situated on the banks of a very pleasant river. My father kept a skiff for the purpose of going too and from an island opposite; this we often used for amusing ourselves (my sister and I) when we would each take an oar and send our light craft far up the rippling waters How we would laugh if either of us would miss our stroke and come near falling in the water. Thee we would often mount our pet horses Fly and Gip and away we would go with the speed of an engine and with spirits as light and free as the air we breathed. But those happy days were not of long duration. I left the haven of peace (my home) to visit an aunt. It was there I met the one that has haunted my dreams these many years, and even now as I write a pang goes through my heart that seems almost to rend it asunder.

Mr. Carbon was an accomplished gentleman of means, who spent the most of his time in traveling; his conversational powers were such that won my unsuspecting heart; he flirted with me and I was silly enough to think him in earnest; he was handsome, I was not. But, thank God, my heart was free from deception—free from the sin of winning unsuspecting hearts only for amusement. I will not detail our courtship—it was the old story—earnest devotion for a time, then desertion, leaving my life a blank after the sunshine of love. My heart ached as only a trusting heart can, that finds after adoring their idol it was but clay. I returned home a changed girl; life was devoid of interest. I bathed my pillow with tears night after night. When I could weep it seemed a relief to my bursting heart and relieved the constant pain in my head. I at last rallied after ruining my health and spoiling my good looks. I vowed that I would never love another however worthy. I resolved I would make others feel the pain I had suffered. This was my sin, I should not have thought of avenging myself on another who might perhaps be as innocent as I had been and who might be worthy of the love I had lavished on another, only to be cast away, after being gained, as a worthless pebble. But I never reflected what the consequences might be. Revenge, sweet revenge, for the wrongs I had endured was all that occupied my thoughts. I did not count the cost else another would not have fallen victim to my caprice, and myself made desolate and repentant. It was not long before I had an opportunity of trying my new gained powers. I now could laugh at my weakness. I gloried in the strength my disappointment had given me. I thought my heart was steeled and would never again feel the softening influence of love. I was now fully prepared to meet love as mine had been, with scorn. Harry Grant was the next beau that I could boast of. I had others or rather the opportunity of having others, but did not consider them worth trifling with. I wanted one that was upright, manly; one that would love with all their strength, as I had done. And this I found in Harry Grant. His nature was such that when he loved his whole heart was absorbed. I knew the depth of his nature, yet dared to trifle with him. Things came to a crisis, as all will do, sooner or later. He asked me to be his wife—and in such a way that I knew he expected no refusal. He knew I had encouraged him. What was my answer. I was silent. Though expecting it yet when the time come I was disappointed. I felt guilty, I knew not of what; I at last nerved myself and told him I was surprised. I thought he had only been visiting me for pastime; that I was sorrow to grieve him, yet I had only thought of him as a friend.

He looked at me searchingly, as though he devined my thoughts, then taking me by the hand thanked me for my frankness and said: "I love you and you alone; no one can ever occupy the place in my affections that you do. I will love you till death, and yet I would not wed an unwilling bride. But if we cannot be nearer may I not still claim you as a friend?"

Oh! how those few manly words cut me to the very heart. How I despised myself for my weakness and for my sin. Why did he not despise me as I despised myself.

We parted. I did not feel as I expected to feel. I felt humbled within myself. I felt that I had done right in telling him I did not love him. Nevertheless I felt unhappy. Why! I know not.

But the rest of my story will tell. Things went on as usual, only I missed him on the evenings he was wont to spend with me. I did not get to see him, as he left home shortly after we parted. But a lady friend told me that he was paying attention to a young lady who was both handsome and wealthy. I laughed and said I was glad to hear he was doing so well. But, ah, the dull aching pain at my heart belied my words. I for the first time realized that I loved him, but found it out too late. When he was mine, all mine, I did not prize him, but no sooner had he turned to another than I discovered how near and dear he was to me. I was prostrated and longed to lay my aching head and breaking heart beneath the clods of the valley. But this was denied me.

After the first shock was over and all the bitterness of my heart had been erased I turned to God, the man of sorrows, for consolation, and I then learned to say, Thy will be done. I accepted my punishment as a reward for the sin of coquetry. I have cast my burden that was too heavy to be borne on Jesus, and he has forgiven me and I am happy in his love. I am still unmarried and will remain so. I sometimes review the past, and when I reflect how happy I might have been if I had not trifled with that happiness while within my reach, tears of deep regret will flow it almost seems from the very depth of my heart. But I do not dare dwell on my life-long mistake. I must bury it deep down in my heart and live for the good of others, so that when I am called hence I may give a good account of the talent intrusted in my care. As for Harry he is the loved object of another, without her love being returned. He often thinks of his early love and wonders why she never married. Little does he suppose that she remained single to be true to the love she had for him.

And now, my dear reader, in conclusion I beg of you never trifle with the feelings of any one. You will repent the longest day you live. If you are not punished as I have been, you will still have cause to regret it. What gratification can it be, dear reader, to know that you have blasted the hopes of a manly breast and sent as it were an arrow through his heart. No, if a gentleman honors you with his company and you think you cannot love him be honest and frank to tell him at first, before his esteem ripens into a warmer attachment, that you can never think of him other than as a friend. You will thus secure a friend and save yourself and perhaps another from ever going through the ordeal I have passed through.

Pat and the Deacon.

Some months ago, as Deacon Ingalls, of Swampscot, R. I., was travelling through the western part of the State of New York, he fell in with an Irishman, who had lately arrived in this country, and was in search of a brother who had preceded him and settled in some of the diggings in that part of the country.

Pat was a strong man, a true Roman Catholic, and had never seen the interior of a Protestant church. Ingalls was a pious man. He told Pat he was going to church, and invited his new-made friend to keep him company thither, his destination being a small meeting-house near by. There was a great revival there at the time, and one of the deacons, who was a very small man in stature invited brother Ingalls to a seat in his pew. He accepted the invitation, followed by Pat, who looked in vain for the altar, etc. After he was seated he turned around to brother Ingalls, and in a whisper that could be heard all around, he inquired:

"Sure, an' isn't this a heretic church?"

"Hush!" said Ingalls; "If you speak a word they will put you out."

"Devil a word will I speak at all, at all," replied Pat.

The meeting was opened with prayer by the pastor.

Pat was eyeing him very closely, when an old gentleman, who was standing in the pew directly in front of Pat shouted,

"Amen!"

"Hist, ye devil!" rejoiced Pat, in his loud whisper, which was heard by the minister; "be dacant, and don't make a blockhead of yourself!"

The parson grew more fervent in his devotions. Presently the deacon uttered an audible groan,

"Amen!"

"Hist, ye blackguard. Have ye no dacancy at all?" said Pat, and at the same time giving him a punch in the ribs, which caused him to lose his equilibrium.

The minister stopped, and extending his hands in a suppliant manner, said:

"Brothren, we cannot be disturbed in this way. Will some one put that man out?"

"Yes, your reverence," shouted Pat, "I will do it."

And suiting the action to the word, he collared the deacon, and the utter horror of the pastor, he dragged him up the aisles, and with a tremendous kick, sent him into the vestibule of the church.

Woman.

What is woman? One of the most beautiful works of nature designated by an all-wise God, for the preservation and perpetuity of our race. When esteemed ad educated, as she merits; she becomes the refiner of man. If we treated women with contempt; if we did not respect them; if we did not preserve their rights; what would be the state of our civilization (?) what would be the state of our social order? Look at those countries where women are degraded and do you not find the men degraded more? Woman is the mainspring of society. Educate her—put her in the business arena designed for man and it is a self evident fact that nine cases out of ten she will make a better man, than man will woman. Do you not find it so? But again, take a close observation of her patience, her, fortitude, her integrity, her constancy, her piety, and her devotion. Are they not all naturally stronger than the same of man? Again, can she not endure more than man? The sick chamber of many a patient and our hospitals will readily decide in the affirmative. Is she not more honest than man? Go to our jails, go to our penitentiaries and see if my interrogation is not fully and affirmatively demonstrated. Is she not more religiously inclined than man? To this question our churches will answer, positively yes. Is she not more devoted than man? Look at our prayer-meetings and decide. Are not her affection, sympathy and veracity superior to that of man? They certainly are. W. H. FLENNER.

SILENT MEN.—Washington never made a speech. In the zenith of his fame he once attempted it, failed, and gave it up confused and abashed. In framing the Constitution of the United States, the labor was wholly performed in committee of the whole, of which George Washington was day after day the chairman, but he made but two speeches, during the convention, of a very few words each. The convention, however, acknowledged the master spirit, and historians affirm that had it not been for his personal popularity and the thirty words of his first speech, pronouncing it the best that could be united upon, the Constitution would have been rejected by the people. Thomas Jefferson never made a speech. He couldn't do it.

The best tree story out is that an oak tree still flourishes in Syria that was planted by Abraham. We suppose that some one will discover that when the patriarch planted it, it was a cutting from the tree which had grown from that olive branch brought in by Noah's dove, which in its turn, was a cutting from the olive branch which Adam may have grafted into his original "ladies' and gentlemen's furnishing store," the fig tree.

☞The friends of Senator Scott from Pennsylvania gave him a reception at Washington on Friday last.

☞Washington is swarming with office-seekers. The President and heads of Departments are besieged with applications for positions of various kinds.

☞James N. Marks has been confirmed by the Senate and President Grant has issued his commission as Collector of the Port of Philadelphia.

☞Immediately upon the resignation of the Hon. E. B. Washburne as Secretary of State, the President nominated and the Senate confirmed him as Minister to France.

☞It is expected that Congress will adjourn on the 26th inst., the House having passed a resolution to that effect, and it is thought the Senate will concur.

On the 8th of April, Gerald Eaton and George S. Twitchell, Jr., will be hung, the Governor having signed their death warrants and appointed that day.

☞The Democratic papers throughout the country cherished the idea until recently, that Grant could be Johnsonized, but they now declare that he is hopelessly radical, and that nothing can be expected of him.

☞The Confederate General James Longstreet has been nominated by President Grant, for Surveyor of the Port of New Orleans. It is said that Longstreet will decline the honor, as he has ample means, and says that he did not come over to the Republicans after the war in order to get an office.

The Hon. James G. Blaine, Speaker of the 41st Congress, is a native of Pennsylvania. He is an editor by profession. After completing his education he removed to the State of Maine and edited the Kennebec Journal and Portland Advertiser.

☞The joint resolution to ratify the constitutional amendment has been passed in the State Senate by a strict party vote, 18 to 15. It comes up in the House to-day, and will pass that body without a doubt, as nearly all of the Republican members have signified their intention to vote for it.

☞The following States have already ratified the suffrage amendment as far as heard from, pretty nearly in the order named: Kansas, Louisiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, West Virginia, Nevada, Maine, Missouri, South Carolina and Georgia.

☞The New Hampshire election took place Tuesday and resulted in a complete victory for the republicans by an increased majority over the March election, although the vote was comparatively lighter. Onslow Stearns was elected Governor, and a full republican delegation in Congress is secured as well as a republican majority in the State Legislature.

☞At a caucus of the Republican members of the U. S. Senate and House on the 10th inst., it was agreed that the two Senators, Cameron and Scott, should have the control of appointments in Democratic districts and that the Representatives should control the appointments in their own districts. In an interview with President Grant he said he would cheerfully make any appointment agreed upon between themselves.

CONGRESSIONAL.—The proceedings in Congress during the past week are not of special importance. The House on Tuesday passed the bill to repeal the tenure of office act by a vote of 143 yeas to 16 nays, and then adjourned over to yesterday.——In the Senate the bill to repeal the Tenure of Office Act was referred to the Judiciary Committee. Congress will probably be ready to adjourn about the first of April.

DEMOCRATS FOR NEGRO SUFFRAGE!—The Georgia Democrats, who obtained control of the Legislature of that State by kicking out the negro members, have just ratified the Suffrage Amendment. The reason given by them for this strange movement, as reported to Gen. Grant on Thursday, is that Congress having inflicted negro suffrage on them, they were now going to try and inflict it in turn on the "damned Yankees." The President smiled, and said that was more than he expected, and seemed pleased at the prospect of so easy a solution of the vexed question.

The New Cabinet.

The following is the new Cabinet, as amended since our last issue. It will be observed that three very material changes have been made:

Secretary of State.—Hamilton Fish, of New York.

Secretary of Treasury.—George S. Boutewell, of Massachusetts.

Secretary of Interior.—J. D. Cox, of Ohio.

Secretary of Navy.—Adolph E. Borie, of Pennsylvania.

Secretary of War.—John A. Rawlins, of Illinois.

Postmaster General.—J. A J. Cresswell of Maryland.

Attorney General.—E. B. Hoar, of Massachusetts.

The revised Cabinet is much stronger than the original one, and is entirely acceptable to the Republicans. Mr. Fish, those who know him say, will make a good Secretary of State, and Mr. Boutewell, for the Treasury Department, is one of the best appointments that could be made. It is intimated that possibly Judge Hoar may resign the Attorney-Generalship, so as to remove the objection to there being two Cabinet officers from the same State—but it is hardly probable that the change will be made at present.

FREE CUBA—the provisional government—in a very short time will formerly demand of the United States recognition as a belligerent power. Cespedes already has an agent in this country empowered to make this request, and the sooner he makes it the better. The insurgent army has now been in the field over five months upholding manfully and successfully the colors of freedom. A fairly organized civil government supports them. The rising is now a fact in every department, and it embraces the entire creole or native element of the island. These men, battling for rights which are traditionally dear to every American, and proving their earnestness and honesty by the emancipation of their own—not merely their enemies'—slaves—mark that !—have the entire sympathies of our people, excepting only those few torpid, sluggish, and unmeaning individuals who are found here and there clinging, from fashion, stupidity, or weak-mindedness, to the memories of slavery. Let Congress speak for us.

A precedent for action in this case is easily found. Fort Sumpter was fired on about the middle of April, 1861, and about the middle of June—in less than sixty days—the insurgents were recognized by the government of Spain. Here is an opportunity for Mr. Washburne to fire his opening gun.

☞We this week give place to a communication from the Rev. J. W. Plannett, reflecting upon an editorial published in the Globe two weeks ago, on the subject of the State Temperance Convention. The subject is inexhaustible, and a great many excellent things can be said on both sides. The opinions of men on the question of Temperance, are as diversified as the sands upon the sea-shore. The arguments of our correspondent are good, but we must inform him that the article in question was not written hastily nor inconsiderately, and that we still insist upon "moral suasion." By comparing notes with us Mr. Plannett will find that the only difference between us is, that he insists upon a "Prohibitory law" at once and we insist upon "moral suasion." The next man that comes along may insist upon something else, as different from either of us as day is from night. There are but two sides to the question—for and against—and temperance men will always differ as to the best method of reaching the end desired.

☞The English capitalists who invested in bonds of the Mexican Empire under Maximilian fare no better in their attempts to get paid than those who throw their money into the bottomless pit of the Confederate treasury. Mr. Perry, the gentleman commissioned to negotiate in their behalf with the Mexican Government, has received an explicit communication from Senor Romero, who denies any liability of the Republic for a debt contracted to secure the overthrow, and reminds the English bondholders that if Mexico has difficulty in meeting even her legitimate obligations, they have partly themselves to blame for it.

☞The New York World, in the course of an article on the new administration, pays Gen. Grant the following handsome and justly-deserved compliment:

"Eight years ago, when Mr. Lincoln was inaugurated, Ulysses Grant was as unlikely a person to be one of his successors as could have been found in the whole country. Nothing but a great convulsion could have lifted so obscure, and apparently so commonplace a man, in so short a time, to so remarkable an elevation. A commonplace man he certainly is not, whatever may be thought of his intellect. His character is surely cast in no common mould. He has undergone the severest trial to which character can be subjected — unlooked-for prosperity, and sudden, giddy elevation—and he has stood the test in a manner which would have done no discredit to any man that has ever lived. His head has never been turned by his wonderful fortune; he has exhibited no levity, no foolish vanity, none of the airs of an upstart, none of the besetting weaknesses of a parvenu; but has borne himself with a quiet and becoming reserve which, under the circumstances, betokens great solidity of character and an inborn sense of dignity."

[COMMUNICATED.]

Messrs. Editors: I am not a little surprised to see the position you have taken in regard to one of the resolutions passed by the State Temperance Convention, assembled at Harrisburg last week. You certainly must have written that article from an erroneous view of the design of the resolution. I feel satisfied that you could not have looked at it after hastily writing it for the press. May I not ask you then to review the matter candidly. You say "we protest against the blow aimed at the Republican party, by the above resolution, for every intelligent man knows that nine tenths of the Temperance men belong to the Republican party." I admit that the resolution contemplates making temperance a prominent plank in the political platform in the future, but how that can be "a blow at the Republican party" I confess I do not understand. Is the Republican party a party of drunkards? Are they as a party, advocates of drunkenness? Is the free and unrestricted manufacture and sale of spirituous liquors a vital principle in their creed? If not, then how can it be "a blow at the Republican party?" You say "if the Democrats can divide and distract our party by making an issue of temperance, they will do so, and ride into power through our folly."—But how can they "divide and distract" our party with this issue? According to your own statement, "nine-tenths of the Temperance men belong to the Republican party Suppose a Temperance plank is put into the platform, it will certainly not "divide and distract" this host of Temperance men It is possible that a few persons who have lost all sense of moral virtue and sobriety, might cease to vote with the party; but are there not thousands who have never voted with the Republican party, who, if temperance were made an issue, would rise above all partisan considerations, and at once identify themselves with the party of reform and progress. The only possible way they could injure the Republican party would be in the event that that party should close its eyes to the progressive spirit of the age, and attempt to incase itself in the glory of its past achievements, hoping to remain in power for what it has done instead of securing greater power by doing greater good. The Republican party any other can only have a claim to existence so long as it keeps progress with the reformatory civilization of the age. When it ceases to do that the sooner it dies the better; such is my view of party and party names, they are nothing while principle, right and truth are to be contended for.

Your second objection is that "the whiskey ring is too strong for any body of men to attempt to break it down." If your premise is correct then are we indeed as a nation, in a deplorable condition; but is he not a coward who would yield his life to cover so formidable a foe without an effort? Have not the incipient steps of every great reform been opposed by just such arguments as yours? What would have become of the armies of Israel under the threatenings of the great and strong Goliah of Gath, if there had not been a David with his shepherd's sling and a few smooth stones from the brook, and with a courageous heart to meet the giant in an open field? Where would have been our Protestantism if Luther had been too cowardly to attempt the Reformation? Where would have been our liberty and Republicanism of to-day if our fathers of '76 had quailed before the strength of the British Lion? But you say, "the ring is rich—immensely rich—and will meet their antagonists at every step." Grant it—but remember, that gold is no more king now than Cotton claimed to be a few years ago. Remember there are some who cannot be bought, aye, there are still some who know that these riches are the price of blood! They see in the prisons, in the alms houses, and in the lunatic asylums a wretched army of wasted, wounded, wrecks of humanity, who have been robbed by alcohol to enrich this "Whiskey Ring." They see in poverty's thousand haunts, the wasted forms of abused wives, naked and hungry children—from whose mouths the bread has been taken to enrich the "Whiskey Ring."

You say you are in favor of "moral suasion"; so am I, but I want to enlarge the field of moral suasion; I want it to extend from the pulpit to the press, the stump, the legislative halls and the judicial bench. I want also to protect by a prohibitory law those who are persuaded that it is wrong to drink; from the temptation they have lost the power to resist. There are, sir, men in this town with whom I have conversed, victims of intemperance, who are so persuaded, and will sit down and weep over their inability to resist the temptations placed before them by the licensing of so many whiskey shops.—There are a few of such men who would vote for a prohibitory law unless the "whiskey ring" kept them too drunk on election day to know what they were doing. Let me ask you, Messrs. Editors, as a friend of progress, of good order, and of humanity, to raise to the mast head of your excellent paper, the flag of Prohibition, for that in all probability will be the shibboleth of the next political campaign. By so doing you will lose no friends worth retaining, but will gather around you, who battle for the right, and I promise you the silent but not unheard prayers of thousands of widows from desolated homes.

J. W. PLANNETT.

Huntingdon, March 6, 1869.

Democratic Stampede in Indiana.

The Democratic members of the Indiana Legislature, on the 4th inst., resigned in a body, leaving only one or two Democratic representatives in each House, and each House without a quorum. The reason assigned for this revolutionary and disgraceful proceeding was to prevent a vote being taken on the 15th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, a very Democratic reason, no doubt; but still one which will hardly commend itself to the calm judgment of citizens who regard this as a country of laws. These bolters seriously interrupt necessary legislation, and leave the Insane, Deaf and Dumb, and other benevolent institutions, as well as the public schools, without support. Gov. Baker has issued writs of election for all the districts made vacant by this bolt, and a special session of the Legislature will be called to meet early in April next.

☞The radical change which was effected in the Government of Japan during the past year seems to be complete and final. The Mikado has established his residence at Yeddo, which is to be the permanent capital of the empire, and there is accessible to the representatives of the foreign powers. His recent acts prove his desire to carry out the treaties. The ports of Yeddo and Negato have been opened according to agreement, and the Minister of France was recently granted an audience, to present his credentials.

A newspaper published in the regions of Lakes Memphremagog and Winnepesaukee says that "the fish in Lake Holleyhunkemunk, Me, are said to be superior to those of either Lake Weeleyobacook or of Moosetookmegontuc. Those of Chauhungogungamaung were very fine, but they all got choked to death in trying to tell where they lived."

The New Cabinet.

The following short biographical sketches of the members composing President Grant's Cabinet, will be interesting to our readers:

The Secretary of State.

Hon. Hamilton Fish, the new Secretary of State, is sixty years of age, having been born in New York City in 1809. After graduating from Columbia College, he was admitted to the bar in 1830. In 1837 he was elected to the Legislature. From 1843 to '45 he occupied a seat in Congress. On the expiration of his Gubernatorial term in 1851, he was chosen United States Senator, and in 1857 he retired from public life, but since then has taken an active interest both in public affairs and in many benevolent and literary institutions of the day. He is a man of wealth and culture. He was formerly an old Whig, and has always opposed the Democratic party. Since the beginning of the war he has sustained the principles and measures of Republicanism, though he has not been conspicuous as a Radical. His personal character for honor and integrity is very high, and though he is not a skilled diplomatist, he has energy and earnestness, and we believe his foreign policy will be firm and straitforward.

The Secretary of the Treasury.

Hon. George S. Boutwell, was born in Massachusetts in 1818; has been engaged in commerce, as well as practiced law; has been in political life since 1842, serving in the Legislature till 1850; in the Massachusetts Constitutional Convention in 1863; in the Peace Congress in 1861; was Governor of his State, and the first Commissioner of Internal Revenue for six months, before March, 1863. He has served in Congress several terms, and been distinguished for his ability and devotion to Republican principles. He is a High Tariff man, and always in favor of protecting American Industry.

The Secretary of War.

Gen. John A. Rawlins, who is made Secretary of War, is an Illinois man. General Grant's oldest and most confidential friend, and during the whole war his chief of staff. He is a man of great good sense, of the most upright character, a good citizen in every way, an able man, and trained in military knowledge.

The Secretary of the Navy.

Adolphus E. Borie, of the firm of McKean, Borie & Co., on Dock street, Philadelphia, is a native of Philadelphia, of French extraction. At the age of fifteen years he graduated at the Philadelphia University, and at twenty four went to Paris, where he remained several years and completed his education. On returning to this country he engaged in the China tea and silk trade. Mr. Borie is not now in active business, excepting in managing a very large fortune amassed in thirty years of mercantile life. He was formerly an old line Whig, and always an uncompromising opponent of the Democratic party. He was one of the founders of the Union League, and is now Vice President. Mr. Borie was born in 1809 and is therefore 60 years of age. He is one of the leading Directors of the Reading Railroad Company, identified with the interests of the State and especially of Philadelphia, and as Secretary of the Navy will probably secure the establishment of a great naval depot at League Island on the Delaware, which will be of incalculable advantage to the people of the State.

The Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. Jacob D. Cox, though comparatively young, has already achieved distinguished honors. He is now about 42 years of age. When a youth he proceeded to Oberlin College, Ohio, and, having completed the theological course, entered the Theological Department. He paid his way by working for his board, teaching school during the winter vacations. He after wards studied law, and soon made his mark at the Ohio bar. When the war broke out, he promptly offered his services, and received a commission as Colonel of an Ohio regiment. At the battle of Rich Mountain, West Virginia, he greatly distinguished himself, and was promoted to a brigadiership. He was uniformly successful at other points in West Virginia until his command was in 1862 transferred to the Army of the Potomac. He served through the war, and at its close in 1865, was elected Governor of Ohio by the Republican party. It will be remembered that during the Cabinet complications General Grant proposed Gen. Cox as a compromise Secretary of War. He has seemingly been a great favorite with General Grant.

The Postmaster General.

John Andrew Jackson Cresswell, the new Postmaster General, was born in Port Deposit, Maryland, in 1828, and graduated at Dickinson College, Pennsylvania, in 1852. He was a member of the Maryland House of Delegates in 1861-62. From August, 1862, to April, 1863, he was Assistant Adjutant General for Maryland and was elected Representative from Maryland to the Thirty-eighth Congress.—He was also a delegate to the Baltimore Convention in 1864. In March, 1865, he was chosen Senator in Congress for the unexpired term of T. H. Hicks, deceased. He is inclined to be a Radical in politics.

The Attorney General.

Ebenezer Rockwood Hoar, the new Attorney General, was born at Concord, Massachusetts, in 1816. He is now a Judge of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, a lawyer of great learning, and a man of remarkable intellect. He was a Whig of the Webster school, but one of the earliest Free-soilers. He always expressed his anti slavery views without the slightest taint of fascination. He is eminently fitted for the position of Attorney General.

A man named Kimball, who was captured by the Indians in 1848, has just made his appearance in St. Louis, with a wife and one child. He has led a genuine savage life for over 20 years. His wife was also a captive reared by the Indians from childhood. He found her in another tribe. All she knows of English she has learned from her husband.

AGENTS WANTED.

A Book of general interest to all classes.

RECOLLECTIONS OF A BUSY LIFE.

By HORACE GREELEY.

In one elegant octavo volume of over 600 pages, well printed on fine paper, and illustrated with an admirable portrait on steel of Mr Greely, with pictures of his various homes, his farm, &c. &c., together with a beautiful portrait of Margaret Fuller, engraved by Linton.

Mr. Greeley has said of it: "I shall never write anything else into which I shall put so much of myself, my experiences, notions, convictions, and modes of thought, as these Recollections. I give, with small reserve, my mental history." The book embraces views of early New England settlement, the author's own youthful life, education, apprenticeship, adventures, professional and political reminiscences, experience in Congress, newspaper life in New York, and much useful talk about farms and farming. It is a peculiarly entertaining and valuable work,—a look behind the scenes during an important period of the country's history.

Every public sale in the county this spring should be advertised in the county papers as well as by hand-bills. A hand-bill is only seen by a few, while the newspaper reaches the many—goes into the houses and is read by the family. The larger the crowd is at the sale, the more competition there is in bidding. By saving a few dollars in not advertising, very often hundreds are lost.

The Manufacture of Glass.

It has been frequently intimated that this place should have Glass works, but as often as it has been intimated, the project for the erection of the same has fallen through from some cause we know not. We hope the subject will again be agitated, and will not be let drop until a glass factory is in operation. We find the following suggestion on the subject in a recent number of a pamphlet that a gentleman has shown us:

Albert Gallatin, a Swiss by birth and education, was the first man to commence the manufacture of glass in Pittsburg, a city now celebrated for its thirty-four glass factories. He was then twenty-seven years of age, and brimful of commercial enthusiasm.—This was in 1790, and now it is said about one-half of the glass used in this country is manufactured at Pittsburgh. The manufacture and sale of glass in that city has increased as follows, viz: In 1803, the sales amounted to $13,000; 1809, $18,000; 1810, $50,000; 1813, $170,000; 1831, $500,000; 1837, $728,000; 1856, $2,621,090. Now, the amount must be enormous, twelve years having elapsed since the date of the last report. Every proprietor of works in that city has been fortunate in the accumulation of a respectable fortune.

When a glass factory was talked of in Clyde the inhabitants thought it would bring a host of dissipated, reckless characters, but a better, more orderly and respectable class of artisans never settled in any locality, and they have retained their reputation to the present day.

When it is understood that Pittsburgh manufacturers send almost daily to sections of this county for the sand, we can see no reason to deter Huntingdon capitalists to seize this great advantage and erect one glass factory at least. The facts and figures above quoted should convince our men of means that the scheme is profitable and the longer the project is delayed the more the interests of Huntingdon will suffer, which in this respect should long ere this have been improved.

Local Legislation.

Mr. Brown, of Huntingdon, a petition from citizens of Mapleton, Huntingdon county, for an act amending the license laws of Huntingdon Co.

Also, one from citizens of Huntingdon county for a prohibitory liquor law for said county.

Also, one from citizens of Walker township, Huntingdon county, for a prohibitory liquor law.

Also, an act exempting Coalmont Lodge, I. O. of O. F., from taxation.

Also, an act to regulate the granting of license to taverns and eating houses in the county of Huntingdon.

Also, an act incorporating the Newton Hamilton bridge company.

Also, an act incorporating the Odd Fellows' Association of Birmingham.

Bills passed finally:—An act to repeal the sixth section of an act for the protection of wild turkeys and squirrels, and for other purposes, in the county of Huntingdon, approved the 8th day of April, 1867.

An act to extend to railroads in Huntingdon county the provisions of a certain act relating to fencing railroads in Centre county.

TO THE REPUBLICAN VOTERS OF HUNTINGDON COUNTY.—At a meeting of the Union Republican County Committee on the 14th of January, I was authorized to call an election of the Republican voters in the several townships and boroughs to adopt or reject the Crawford County System in nominating candidates. I understand that some parties are trying to induce the people to vote on the above question at the coming spring elections on Friday next. No election has been called by me for that purpose as yet, but I design making such a call when the proper time arrives for the same or the Committee names the day.

H. C. WEAVER,
Chairman Co Com.

Huntingdon, Mch. 15, 1869.

Spring Election.

We call the attention of Republicans and urge them to attend the election on Friday. It is important that we put in nomination and elect good and reliable men. The Democrats will be on the alert and take advantage of any neglect on the part of the Republicans. The following officers are to be elected in this borough:

One Assessor.
Two School Directors.
One Constable.
One Judge of Election, East Ward.
Two Inspectors of Election, E. W.
One Judge of Election, West Ward.
Two Inspectors of Election, W. W.

☞The fame of the celebrated Plantation Bitters has no parallel in the history of Medicine. The thousands of bottles that are made and sold daily is but proof positive of their wonderful virtues. The stable belonged to Mr. Phillips, who was employed in hauling sand for the Company.

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.

Along the Railroad, 3d mo. 1869.—MESSRS. L's:—About twelve miles west of Huntingdon and a less number east of Tyrone, along the Pennsylvania Railroad, is Spruce Creek. A village principally noted for its large and commodious hotel which is a brick structure of three stories, and containing many rooms. A few years ago it was numbered first class and proved a fashionable resort; at present it is seemingly quiet. Yet, notwithstanding, business is doing in other quarters. The mercantile business, I presume, is good. The pleasant "faces" of the merchants indicate it and the number of quick sales verify my presumption. The saloons do a thriving business, if you allow me to judge by the number of customers on certain evenings. The country surrounding is more romantic than beautiful, but after you leave this point, on the W. and S. C. Pike, one mile or nearly, romantic yields to beauty and grandeur. The Pike passes through the valley near its centre to the farthest extremity, about twelve miles to the Centre county line. Sing about Jordan being a road to travel, meditate Virginia corduroy, "thimpety thump, bump, bump" over worn out plank roads and on this Pike you have them compounded. Along this route there are eighteen or twenty farm houses close by, and perhaps six or eight in sight at a short distance. There are also, including Spruce Creek, three villages—the other two being Franklinville, formerly Mechanicsville, and Graysville—six churches, six school houses, one G. T. hall,—this in connection with the churches evince the morality of the people—one furnace, two forges, two foundries, two woolen factories, four grist mills, five blacksmith shops, two tailor shops, two shoemakers, two physicians, seven stores, one grocery and two restaurants. There may be others of which I obtained no knowledge. One place came under my observation of which I will write more particularly. It is known as "Isett's Spring." Situated about a half a mile from the mouth of the Creek, in a beautiful grove. Close by are innumerable bolders scattered "topsy turvey" adding variety to the place. On one side is an elevation remarkable for its magnificent scenery, on the other is Spruce creek noted for its grandeur and inexhaustible stores of trout, suckers and eels. Where are the capitalists that this place has not been sought and made a fashionable summer resort?

Before closing, if you please, a few words, respecting the madamoiselles I saw on my route. They were numerous. Many marriageable, some pretty, wealthy, witty and wise. Are these qualities not sufficient to induce refined young monsieurs at a distance to visit that place and get acquainted? All ye young men, I might safely include bachelors, for there are a few old maids—not very old either, perhaps twenty-nine or forty—who are awaiting hymen that they may enjoy a hymenial tour. Now is your chance boys. Pitch in.

P. S.—The coach or stage, leaves Spruce Creek for this route, every day.

MARRIED,

On the 2d inst., at the Lutheran parsonage, in Mechanicsville, by Rev. J. M. Steck, Mr. ABRAHAM FULTZ, of Monno township, to Miss SUSAN MUSSER, of Brady township, Huntingdon County.

On 4th inst., by Rev. J. E. Kearns, Mr. HENRY BOOK, to Miss SELINDA SILVERTHORN, both of Shade Valley, Huntingdon County, Pa.

On 25th ult., by B. F. Brown, Esq., Mr. JOHN H. GRAY, to Miss M. ELIZABETH HARPSTER, both of Huntingdon Furnace.

DIED,

At Huntingdon Furnace, on March 4, 1869, CLARA J. MURRITS, aged 7 yrs.

Death! What a mighty monarch! King of terrors! Thou visitest the young as well as the old, and in an hour we think not. Solemn reflection! Clara was suddenly summoned to that bourne from whence no traveler returns. All is well. Christ has said: "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not."

Sleep, little traveler, sleep,
The Saviour summoned thee,
That thou mightest sleep the sleep of one
Safe through eternity. T.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

"An Ounce of Prevention is Better than a Pound of Cure.

This is the most sickly period of the year but there is a remedy which is a constant protection against the causes of disease; it enters swiftly into the circulation of the blood, expels the morbific substance collected therein during the winter; corrects all morbid changes in the blood; regulates the supply and quality and equalizes the circulation of the blood; promotes the operations of the digestive organs; acts as a mild and efficacious stomachic; strengthens the nervous fibres and calms the nervous system; promotes buoyancy of spirits and feeling; revives the physical energies, and imparts vitality and elasticity to every organ of the human body. It is no less celebrated a preparation than MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS. Use it now—use it regularly every day—and prepare your system for the change in the season, and fortify it against the dangers of disease. mar10bom.

I want to rouse each sleepy head,
Who stand upon the brink,
Where yawning gulfs disclose the dead,
Who might, but did not, think.

I want to warn the living ones
Who blindly grope along,
Ye fathers, daughters, mothers, sons,
What perils round you throng!

Look out, my reader, are you free,
Or do you wear the mark?
Most all are blind and cannot see,
Yes, groping in the dark.

Catarrh, a demon in the head,
Consumption is its son;
Kills hosts, yes, countless millions, dead,
Perhaps you may be one.

That hacking, hawking, spitting, shows,
Catarrh affects your head,
Matter and slime in throat or nose,
Runs down your throat instead.

Your lungs and liver soon will show,
Consumption has its birth;
Catarrh, its sire, will feed it too,
Till you return to earth.

If colds affect your head and throat,
ANNIHILATOR buy;
Now don't forget what I have wrote,
Or think this subject dry.

WOLCOTT'S ANNIHILATOR cures
Catarrh—the demon dire;
It saves the lungs, good health insures,
And Catarrh quickly dies.

I want to gratify my friends,
Who wish to understand
About PAIN PAINT, its use, its ends.
And why its great demand.

I want to show you, plain as day,
Why PAIN PAINT stops all pain;
That you may never have to say,
"I'll not try paint again."

PAIN PAINT will cool but never stain;
Pumps inflammation out;
'Tis harmless on the breast or brain,
A trial stops all doubt.

When inflammation leaves the frame,
All pain will cease at once;
Removes the cause, 'tis all the same;
None doubts unless a dunce.

The pores will ope and drink PAIN PAINT;
Absorbents fill with ease;
Restores the weak, the sick, the faint,
The greatest skeptics please.

Evaporation cools the place
As inflammation flies;
Hot blood at the absorbent's base
Makes PAINT in vapor rise.

'Tis thus PAIN PAINT removes all doubt,
Removes the very cause
By pumping inflammation out;
On this we rest our cause.

Wolcott's Pain Paint is sold at all Drug Stores; also, Wolcott's Annihilator, for the cure of Catarrh and colds in the head. Sent by express on receipt of the money, at 181 Chatham Square, N. Y. R. L. Wolcott, Prop. 4w

There was a funny little episode on the car that helped to arouse us. At Montana a young man and a young woman came on board the sleeping car, and the former said: "See here, Mr. conductor, I want one of your best bunks for this young woman and one for myself individually. One will do for us when we get to the Bluffs, hey, Mariar?" (a playful and affectionate poke at "Mariar" with his elbow, to which she replied: "Now John quit!") "for you see we're goin' to git married at Mariar's uncle's when we git there. We might 'a' been married at Montany, but we took a habit to wait 'till we got to the Bluff, bein' as Mariar's uncle is a minister, and they charge a gol' fired price for splicin' folks at Montany." Mariar was assigned to one of the "best bunks," and John was given one not far away. After a time the inmates of the car were all stowed away in their berths, to go through the alternations of sweltering and freezing.

During the stoppage of the train at one station the voice of John was heard, raised in pleading accents, all unconscious that the train had stopped, and that tones, which the noise of the rattling wheels had drowned while cars were moving, could be distinctly heard by all when the train had stopped.

"Now, Mariar, you might give a feller jes' one kiss."

"John, you quit, or I'll git right out here and hoof it back to Montany in the snow storm."

"Only one little kiss, Mariar, and I'll go; hope to die if I don't."

"John!——"

Just at that interesting moment a gray head protruded from a berth at the other end of the car and an old man cried out so that all could hear: "Mariar, for God's sake give John one kiss, so that we can get to sleep some time to-night!"

It is needless to remark that a peal of laughter rang from one end of the car to the other, under cover of which John slunk back to the solitary seclusion of his "bunk," leaving Mariar to the undisturbed possession of her marriage license, which she interpreted to permit no license to John until accompanied by the proper certificate. And Mariar was right.—From a Letter by Gris.

A Heavy Blow.—A Pennsylvania Colonel, a very particular friend of ours, is very fond of telling stories, of which he is invariably the hero. The only fault about some of them is that they are highly colored, in short, he always "drawe ye long bowe."

"I was once in Harrisburgh," says the Colonel, "on official business. During my stay a horse-race came off near the capitol, and as I am rather partial to horse-racing, I went to see it. Just as the horses were about a arting, some fellow insulted me by jostling me rather roughly. Now, you know I don't often fight, but when I strike, why, then I do strike. So I up fist, and hit him a blow that sent him against the fence, into the field, carrying with him nine section of posts and rails. The fellow laid a short time, then rising himself into a sitting posture, he looked wildly around him. "Gentlemen," said he, has this storm done much damage? Did the lightning strike anybody but me?"

☞At a far western court, the case of Smith vs. Jones was called up.—"Who's for the plaintiff?" inquired the Judge, impatiently. "May it please the Court," said a rising member of the legal fraternity, "Pilkins is for the plaintiff, but I left him just now over at the tavern playing a game of poker. He's got a sucker there, and he is sure to skin him, right smart, if he only has time. He's got everything all set to ring a 'cold deck,' in which case he'll deal for himself four aces and his opponent four queens, so that your Honor will perceive that he must take the persimmons." "Dear me!" said the Judge, with a sigh, "that's too bad! It happens at a very unfortunate time! I am very anxious to get on with this case." A brown study followed, and at length a happy idea struck the Judge: "Bill," said he, addressing the friend of the absent Pilkins who had just spoken, "you understand poker about as well as Pilkins. Suppose you go over and play his hand!" And Bill did it.

☞What ridiculous things occur sometimes at funerals? For instance, on one of those solemn occasions out West, there stood in the house of the defunct an old fashioned clock, which, when it finished the announcement of the meridian hour, was made to play a tune. The officiating minister was in the midst of his sermon when, noon having arrived, the clock commenced striking twelve. In a very solemn tone he impressed on his hearers the inevitable flight of time; but the exhortation was evidently ineffective, as the clock instantly followed with the cheery old notes of "Take your time, Miss Lucy!"

An American writer says: "A woman will cling to the chosen object of her heart like a possum to a gum-tree, and you can't separate her without snapping strings no art can mend, and leaving a portion of her soul on the upper leather of your affections. She will sometimes see something to love where others see nothing to admire."

A Paris paper gives a conversation between a father and his little daughter. "What have you done with your doll?" "I put it away, to keep for my children, when I grow up." "But if you shouldn't have any?" "Ah! well! then it will do for my grandchildren."

A little girl was very fond of preaching to her dolls. Her mother heard her one day reproving one for being so wicked. "Oh, you naughty, sinful child," she said shaking the waxen limbs, "you will just go to that lake of brimstone and molasses, and you won't burn up—you'll just sizzle!"

An atheist fellow, during a storm at sea, concluded a prayer with the following words:—"Oh Lord, I beseech Thee to hear my prayer at this time, for Thou knowest I trouble Thee but seldom."

"I will consent to all you desire," said a facetious lady to her lover, "on condition that you give me what you have not, what you can never have,

SOLDIERS' HEIRS, ATTENTION!

The act of Congress approved March 2, 1867, gives to Heirs of Soldiers who died prisoners of war, for the time the soldier was so held a prisoner, at the rate of twenty-five cents per day, to be paid in the following order: 1st. To the widow, if unmarried; 2d. To the children; 3d. To the parents, to both jointly if they are living, if either is dead, to the survivor; 4th. To the brothers and sisters.

COMMUTATION FOR RATIONS,

The act of February 28, 1867, provides for the refunding of the $300 Commutation Money, where the same person was again drafted, and was required to enter the service or furnish a substitute.

DISCHARGED SOLDIERS.

The act of March 2, 1867, also makes provisions for the payment of the

$100 ADDITIONAL BOUNTY

to such soldiers as have accidentally lost their discharges

All persons having any claims under any of the above mentioned Acts, or any other kind of claim against the United States or State Governments, can have them promptly collected, by addressing the undersigned. Information and advice cheerfully given to soldiers or their friends, free of charge.

WHARTON & MAGUIRE,

Ayer's

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterous affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

McGUIRE'S

SPANISH HAIR DRESSER

FOR PROMOTING THE GROWTH, BEAUTIFYING THE HAIR.

And rendering it dark and glossy. No other compound possesses the peculiar properties which so exactly suit the various conditions of the human hair. The use of this oil as a hair dresser has been universal in every section of the country in the Spanish Main for centuries.—No preparation of art could give that elegant luxuriance and abundance of hair which have so often been the admiration of beholders in Spain. This oil is highly and delicately perfumed, forming an article unrivaled in excellence and upon which the Spanish people for many years have set its seal of enduring approval.
